ICWCI Press Release

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Dorset man receives 'Building on Quality Award' for his involvement with the Twin Sails Bridge, Poole

The Institute of Clerks of Works and Construction Inspectorate (ICWCI) held its 12th 'Building on Quality Awards' Gala Dinner at the Cophthorne Hotel, Newcastle Upon Tyne, on Saturday 27th April 2013.

Frank Miller of Shapwick, Dorset was the Overall Winner of the Awards for his involvement with the Twin Sails Bridge located in Poole.

ICWCI has for many years conducted awards that recognise the skills and abilities of Clerks of Works, Construction Inspectors (or those of similar calling) within the construction process. Working primarily for the client, it is their knowledge and diligence that ensure, through rigorous and detailed inspection and reporting, that value for money in terms of both materials and workmanship is achieved, and this year the Institute combined the Awards with its Annual Conference and AGM, all hosted by members from the North East Chapter.

ICWCI hold awards not only to recognise those who are involved on projects of high quality workmanship, but also to promote the need for the role of the Clerk of Works and its relevance to the modern construction industry.

Tony Hickton FICWCI, newly installed ICWCI President, gave an encouraging address at the Awards and Presidents Dinner; followed by Guest Presenter/Speaker, Stephen Hodder MBE, President Elect of the RIBA.

The Awards were made in three categories; Highly Commended, The Peter Wilson Memorial Trophy and Overall Winner Award.

With 17 short-listed entries from the UK and Ireland, a team of senior members of the ICWCI visited and judged Frank's project.

Chairman of the Judging Panel, Meredith Whilden FICWCI said; "The quality this season has been literally staggering, far higher than ever before."

Meredith went on to add

"This year the judges felt that one person in particular should receive the coveted Overall Winner Award. Over many years Frank has shown his ability to produce projects of the very highest quality. He works closely with the Design Teams on matters of materials, alternate methods and buildability. His enthusiasm and refusal to accept sub-standard workmanship is fully evident and reflected in the quality and detail of his project. Frank's professionalism, proficiency and dedication is fully evident and far over and above what is expected of a Clerk of Works."

Notes for Editors:

The Institute of Clerks of Works and Construction Inspectorate has for many years conducted biennial awards that recognises the skills and abilities of Clerks of Works/Site Inspectors (or those of similar calling) within the construction process. Working primarily for the client, it is their knowledge and diligence that ensure, through rigorous and detailed inspection and reporting, that value for money in terms of both materials and workmanship is achieved.

Unlike many awards schemes, our concern is the promotion of both the need for the role and its relevance to the modern construction industry.

The Institute of Clerks of Works and Construction Inspectorate (ICWCI) was formed in 1882 and Incorporated in 1903, and represents the professional and technical interests of Clerks of Works (and those of similar and equivalent duties) worldwide.
